

Michael Harding Oil

Michael Harding oil paints are handmade in the UK using techniques dating back to the Old Masters. Being an artist himself, Michael Harding developed this range to 'create colours that were true and vibrant, and paint that was beautiful and durable'. They are made with linseed oil using a high concentration of pigment and without the use of fillers and extenders resulting in highly intense colours made to the highest standard. The selection offers all the colours you need for a traditional palette in 60ml or 225ml tubes. The whites are made with poppy oil and there is also a Cremnitz White made with walnut oil used in glazing or fine detail work.

Cremnitz White in Walnut Oil

Cremnitz white in Walnut oil is a beautiful alternative to linseed oil. Walnut oil gives the paint a smooth buttery consistency and feels distinctly more 'silken' to use than linseed oil based paints allowing it to spread more thinly for detailed work. It yellows at a slower rate than Linseed oil so is an ideal substitute for white. It also aids 'over painting' as it is less prone to cracking.
